

Intersectoral Behavior Change Wheel – An application to childhood obesity prevention

Goal: Providing a theoretical framework to guide intersectoral actions for wicked public health problems
 Method: interviews with local governmental stakeholders, observations at the municipal health service, literature
 Result: A hypothetical framework
 Conclusion: By unraveling how we can approach public health problems in an intersectoral way and providing a framework to study this approach, we hope to stimulate and structure the debate on how we can stimulate local governments to put their intentions into actions
 Contact: anna-marie.hendriks@maastrichtuniversity.nl

